A New Look at Contemporary Child Welfare: Straight Talk for Social Workers - Talking to Children About the Toughest Topics

Time: 5:30pm – 8:30pm

Course Code: SWCHIWEL/10

Room: Silberman/218

Cost: $105.00

They will then explore using those same techniques with adults when a difficult conversation is necessary. Finally, there will be an exploration of how to do self-talk for self-care during difficult conversations.

CE Hours: 3

A New Look at Contemporary Child Welfare: Child Welfare and Your Practice

Instructor: Maris Blechner, LCSW, M.Ed.

Date: Monday, May 22, 2017

Time: 5:30pm – 8:30pm

Course Code: SWCHIWEL/9

Room: Silberman/218

Cost: $105.00

Description: No matter what your particular field of practice, from drug rehabilitation to education to private clinical work, it is inevitable that at some point you will encounter adult foster children, adult adoptees, foster parents, adoptive parents, or birth parents who have relinquished their children or lost them to the foster care system. Child welfare is an often - misunderstood segment of society. It is critically important for all practicing social workers to understand the various components of child welfare, and what is the best and worst of that system, in order to best help their own clients.

CE Credit: 3

A New Look at Contemporary Child Welfare: Looking at Child Welfare Through a Wider Social Lens

Instructor: Maris Blechner, LCSW, M.Ed.

Date: Monday, May 8, 2017

Time: 5:30pm – 8:30pm

Course Code: SWCHIWEL/7

Room: Silberman/218

Cost: $105.00

Description: To truly understand foster care and adoption today, it is necessary to know more than regulations and law (even given that New York State has some of the best in the country). It is important to understand how foster care, by its very nature, can alter child development – and how adoption, and foster care as well, are strongly misperceived by American society. Social workers, no matter what their role, will certainly encounter foster and adopted children in their work, whether as children or adults. The ability to look at their situations through a wide contemporary lens will enable social workers to work more effectively with populations impacted by foster care and adoption.

CE Hours: 3

A New Look at Contemporary Child Welfare: Adoption in America-The Whole Is Greater Than the Sum of its Parts (Home Studies)

Instructor: Maris Blechner, LCSW, M.Ed.

Time: 6:00pm – 9:00pm

Course Code: SWCHIWEL/6

Room: Silberman/218

Cost: $105.00

Description: Although adoption is not the family-builder of choice for a large number of Americans, it is imperative that every social worker in every field of practice have an understanding of contemporary adoption. Content will include: What are the various types of adoption and the steps to achieve them; what is required to be a successful adoptive parent; why do people adopt, and not adopt; what do we need to know when adoptive parents or adoptees become part of our personal or professional lives?

CE Hours: 3

A New Look at Contemporary Child Welfare: Successful Adoption in the World of Foster Care

Instructor: Maris Blechner, LCSW, M.Ed.,

Date: May 15, 2017

Time: Monday, 5:30pm – 8:30pm

Course Code: SWCHIWEL/8

Room: Silberman/218

Cost: $105.00

Description: The role of foster care, and of foster parents, is greatly misunderstood in our greater society, and often seen in a negative light. Yet, who better to adopt children in need of permanence than the “temporary” parents who have often cared for them for many years? Long-term foster parents are of great value to foster care agencies, not only because they know “the routine,” but because they have invested themselves and their families’ lives in caring for children who may have come to them from chaotic backgrounds, with unknown futures. In order to be successful adoptive parents, foster parents need special training about the difference between foster care and adoption.

Description: Children exposed to physical and sexual abuse, domestic and/or community violence, and other traumatic life events, dramatically increase their risk of severe emotional distress and potentially lasting psychological and interpersonal difficulties.

A significant number of children are exposed to traumatic life events. From a psychological perspective, trauma occurs when a child experiences an intense event that threatens or causes harm to his or her emotional and/or physical well-being. Examples of traumatic events can include sexual or physical abuse, witnessing domestic violence, community and school violence, exposure to natural disasters such as a hurricane or flood or to events such as war and terrorism. Unfortunately, about one in every four children will experience a traumatic event before the age of 16.

Trauma-Focused Cognitive-Behavioral Therapy (TF-CBT), developed by Judith Cohen, Anthony Mannarino, and Esther Deblinger, is an empirically supported treatment for children and families exposed to traumatic life events. This two-day training will provide an intensive review of all of the TF-CBT treatment components, with a specific focus on clinical implementation strategies, and will give participants an opportunity to hone and increase their skills in the powerful practice of TF-CBT.
